In a significant and strategic shift in the Oil and Gas industry in Sri Lanka, Hayleys Energy Services has completed the testing, repair and modifications of the hydraulic work over rig, the 'Lewek Explorer 600', due to be mobilized for an oil field project in Bangladesh shortly.

This is the first time an oil rig has been serviced on-shore in Sri Lanka with Hayleys Energy Services having been awarded the contract by EMAS Energy Services (Thailand). This was made possible due to the availability of Advantis Free Zone, located in Katunayake which enabled a streamlined service of storage, repair and maintenance with green channel operations, relieving the client of all taxes and duties.

Operating in the field of Oil and Gas logistics services since 2008, Hayleys Energy Services has been moving rigs across several countries such as Thailand, USA, Canada, UAE and DR Congo. Through the relationships established in the industry, Hayleys Energy Services identified the potential savings for their client EMAS by bringing this rig to Sri Lanka for assembly, testing and modifications.

The components of the rig were brought down from several locations across the globe, including the main component which was stored at the Hamriyah Free Zone in Sharjah, UAE. The green channel operations of the Advantis Free Zone, enabled this operation to be carried out with significant cost savings to EMAS, whilst generating nearly LKR 100 Million in revenue to the Sri Lankan economy.

"The end-to-end logistics service offering of the Advantis Group and the experience in handling complex logistics operations gave us the confidence to approach EMAS and secure this new line of business for our Group. We are also proud to say that this is the first time the hub concept has been utilized in Sri Lanka for the repair and refurbishment of an oil rig, showcasing to the world the potential in this small island", said Chas Charles, CEO of Hayleys Energy Services.

"The successful completion of this operation in Sri Lanka proves that we are ready to serve large oil and gas companies such as EMAS Energy Services.

"This was made possible due the Government's initiative of establishing a Free Zone in Sri Lanka, the benefits of which we are seeing today", said Ricky Barnett, General Manager of Hayleys Energy Services.
